

Leadership and Management in Health

April 07 – June 30, 2019

Ann Downer, EdD, MPH; Britt Yamamoto, PhD, MS

12 weeks, 6-9 hours per week

Learn how to lead organizations and manage people in this course on Leadership and Management in Health. The course focuses on the practical leadership and management skills required for working in complex local, regional, national and global health environments. By the end, you will develop a clear sense of the issues and challenges associated with leading organizations and managing people. Personal leadership development and practical management skills are both emphasized. Most case studies, readings, and assignments assume an existing knowledge of the health care system, labor law, and funding landscape in your country. You will get the most out of this course if you can apply the concepts and strategies immediately to a work setting, including being in a position to lead meetings, facilitating team development, communicating on behalf of the organization, managing conflicts, analyzing and monitoring management data, supervising and delegating work, and managing some aspects of complex project implementation.

Format

This online graduate-level course has video lectures, readings, discussion forums, quizzes, and assignments.

You can participate in this course as an independent participant or as part of a site with five or more people. We encourage participation as a group because it provides a forum for discussing course concepts and applying them to the local setting and customs. If you can't join a group, the discussion boards can provide that forum.

The course is taught in English.

More information

Visit edgh.washington.edu/courses/leadership-management-health

Eligibility

The course is most useful for health care professionals and public health specialists who have some experience in management and who wish to enhance their skills working with people and other organizational resources. The course is less well suited to individuals in entry-level positions in the workforce.

Fees

Low- & middle-income countries

Local sites: $999 (5-60 participants)

Independent participants:
$299 (mailed certificate) or
$199 (digital certificate)